Reminiscent of the painting "Washington Crossing the Delaware" is this photo of United States army flyers forced down in Greenland being rescued by coast guardsmen, whose many wartime duties take them from Arctic wastes to African shores and Pacific beaches. (NEA Telephoto.)

Folks at Home May Have to Cut Butter Consumption 40 Pct.

Government "Freezes" $5,000,000 Pounds for Army and Navy

Washington, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Keep Johnny Doughboy from getting fed dry bread while fighting away, the folks at home may have to spread their butter—or use some substitute. Frozen in more ways than one, 40 per cent of the nation's cold-pressed butter supply today is aside for fighting men and the lend program under terms of a War Production Board order. And housewives started eyeing in table-fat substitutes as margarine and peanut butter, for the temporary wording of the order failed to ease the threat of national shortage. Agriculture department officials asserted that butter production was not being marketed because of the fact that the WPB slice of nearly $5,000,000 pounds would be felt in near future.

However, WPB officials plan to supplement the freeze as quickly as possible with a limitation order which would cut consumption by about 10 per cent. May Not Ration It They added that the shortage of butter might not be as serious, although the board's requirements committee—

Outlawing of Strikes and Sitdowns

Chicago, Nov. 21.—(AP)—The Illinois Agriculture Association has announced that "strikes, slowdowns and sitdowns are outlawed by executive order of the appropriate authority, unless responsible labor leaders effect controls of labor groups." The association adopted a resolution to that effect at the closing session of its 28th annual convention. It added that "strikes and slowdowns from work are seriously interfering with the output of essential war materials." In the single month of August, 2,450,000 man days of labor were lost on account of strikes, it said.

Loss of Allied Shipping in Atlantic Raised to 532

Washington, Nov. 21.—(AP)—The Navy announced today that the medium-sized United States merchant vessel was torpedoed and sunk by an enemy submarine during the latter part of October in the Atlantic off the northern coast of South America. Three seamen perished in the attack, but 51 others were rescued and landed safely at allied ports. The sinking raised to 532 the total of allied and neutral vessels lost in the Atlantic since America's entry into the war.

Sailor Commended for Courageous Action

Washington, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Otto Hale, seaman, first class, Stretcher 111, was commended by the Navy yesterday for courageous action while a member of a guard crew on a merchant ship. The Navy related that Hale remained on board a torpedoed craft after a surprise attack and continued to shoot at the submarine until forced to abandon ship when the gun was awash.

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Cairo, Nov. 21.—I find most gratifying the air of solid confidence in both British and American military headquarters on the Nile as the chase of the disorganized axis forces continues westward across the Libyan desert into the crimson glow of Hitler's setting sun.

Now of course figures of speech are among the world's greatest liars and must be used with great reserve. So I hasten to add that it is with deliberation that I refer to the master gangster's sinking sun, for it most assuredly has passed its zenith, considering all aspects of the European war.

Still, while confidence among our captains of the war is 100 per cent, there is not the slightest disposition to underestimate the magnitude of the task ahead of us. The Boche has plenty of fight left in him and his striking power is great despite his losses.

It is true that the only way we can lose now is through allied errors in judgment, but a major mistake might prove disastrous. As regards the Libyan wing of the great allied North African show, we are in the midst of the battle. Unless the Germans unexpectedly step entirely out of character there still is heavy fighting in the offing.

In assessing the position we must recognize that Rommel's sensational flight, which is being carried out with exceptional speed, is impelled by tactical necessity rather than fear. It is a rash man who, even in hatred, claims the German soldier is afraid to stand and fight.

What Rommel is trying to do

Chicago, Nov. 21.—(AP)—With the pheasant hunting season ended, a checkup on results in Illinois brought this:

George Rowcliff of Batavia, captured an eagle he shot and wounded; Albert W. Zweifel of Elgin bagged a red fox; Bob Cernocky of Fox River Grove brought down two snow geese; Dr. George Nesbitt of Sycamore caught four jackrabbits and six rattlesnakes; a DeKalb motorist killed a buck deer with his automobile; and another hunter shot up the Browning rural school, smashing a window and smashing the blackboard.

Communique on Sunken Trawlers Fails to Tell of Heroic Generals

By MURLIN SPENCER

With Allied Forces at Buna, New Guinea, Nov. 19.—(Delayed)—(AP)—The officer at headquarters who writes the communique used a half dozen words Wednesday to tell how Japanese bombers sank two allied trawlers off the Buna coastal area, but he didn't mention that two allied generals were aboard the trawlers and had to swim to shore.

One general watched the bombers swooping in for their attack and called for a rifle. He blazed away until forced to leave the sinking craft. The other also took the attack with fine disdain and remained at a commanding post. Both officers had to swim nearly a half mile to shore with the men and both refused any help, insisting that others needed it more. Their names are still a military secret.

The Japanese bombers also attacked the allied positions along the shore and, after the bombing,

Laval Advocates an Entente With Nazis as Hope for Europe

Broadcasts Attack on United States; Says Germany Will Win

Vichy (From French Broadcasts), Nov. 21.—(AP)—Pierre Laval advocated an alliance with Germany as Europe's sole hope for peace in a broadcast to the people of Nazi-occupied France last night and declared new volunteer legions would be raised to answer "the fresh insults which France has had to suffer" from the allied campaign in North Africa.

"We are again seeking reconciliation and an entente with Germany," Laval declared in his first address since he was given dictatorial powers and named as political heir to Marshal Petain. He accused the United States and Britain of "tearing away bit by bit" at the French empire because of their losses in the Pacific; said he was certain of a German victory.

"From what has happened in North Africa we have discovered the fate that waits us tomorrow if Roosevelt gets away with it," Laval said. "We would have to submit to a domination by Com-

Says Hitler Has Ruined Reichswehr

London, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Gen. Ritter Von Thoma, the first captured German general to arrive in London, is reported by the Daily Mail's military writer to have held in talks with the British that "Hitler has ruined the reichswehr."

The officer disclosed "remarkable facts about the bitter feeling prevalent in the inner circles of the German general staff," the writer said.

Captured by the British Nov. 4 while serving as commander of the Nazi African Corps under Marshal Rommel, Von Thoma was described as one of the school of professional German soldiers who "dispute any encroachment in their sphere by civilians or politicians and all members of the Nazi party, including Hitler himself."

"He is believed to have said that Hitler's assumption of the supreme command spells disaster to the war machine built up by the devotion of the great general staff," the writer said.

General Narrowly Misses Being Shot

Cairo, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Brig. Gen. Patrick Timberlake, chief of the U. S. Army Air Force bomber command in the Middle East, narrowly missed being shot down by axis fighters when he was returning from one of the longest bombing flights of the war, it was disclosed today.

More than 70 bullet and cannon shell holes were counted in the plane in which he was a passenger.

TO EXECUTE HOSTAGES London, Nov. 21.—(AP)—A DNB broadcast from Berlin today said 10 Belgian hostages were to be executed for the recent fatal shooting of the Belgian Nazi burgomaster of Charleroi unless those responsible for the attack are discovered by next Wednesday midnight.

Order to Postpone Gasoline Rationing May Be Up to F. D. R.

Congressmen Seeking Delay Plan Appeal to White House

Washington, Nov. 21.—(AP)—A bi-partisan congressional bloc was reported unofficially today to be pinning its hopes for postponement of nationwide gasoline rationing upon the possibility of intervention by President Roosevelt. Likelihood increased that the group would appeal directly to the White House for a delay even as the chance that Congress would pass stop legislation diminished.

Members of the bloc—largely composed of congressmen from the western oil-producing states—conceded freely there was little possibility that legislation could be whipped into shape to postpone the rationing order before the Dec. 1 deadline.

Out of a meeting of a committee representing that group came indirect intimations of the plan to lay the case before the president and ask for a delay of at least a month in order to reopen a study of the entire gasoline situation.

Program Mapped Out "We've mapped out a program," declared Rep. Jed Johnson (D-Okl.), "and I think that it will be effective—and effective at an early hour." In response to a question as to whether the program included contact with the White House, he replied: "Well, it might."

Rep. Sumners (D-Tex.), committee chairman, was asked if the group planned to send representatives to see the president, and responded: "I wish you wouldn't ask me that question."

"The committee," he declared, however, "will not take any position which will interfere with the production of the war. We're all agreed on that."

Meanwhile, the committee agreed to mark time until Wednesday while watching the progress of hearings scheduled before the house interstate committee on Monday and Tuesday on the gasoline situation.

Representatives of the War and Navy departments have been asked to present their views, along with officials in charge of transportation, rubber, price control and gasoline.

Coffee Sales Stop Meanwhile coffee sales at retail stores halt for one week at midnight tonight. The sales suspension is intended to give grocers a chance to stock up for the start of coupon rationing at midnight, November 28, when every adult will be entitled to buy one pound every five weeks.

"Coffee will be available for every person over 15 when rationing starts," an Office of Price Administration spokesman said, "but we're hoping that housewives won't cash in all the family's coupons at once right at the start."

"Just buy the amount that you need. We can give absolute assurance there will be enough for all."

The first coffee ration may be purchased next Sunday or thereafter by presenting stamp number 27 from the sugar ration book, or ration book number 1. Any person who has more than one pound on hand November 28 may not purchase coffee until the excess is used up. Sometime around the first of the year stamps covering the excess stocks of coffee in family cupboards on November 28 will be removed from the book.

Sugar ration books held by persons who were under 15 years of age when sugar rationing registration took place last May will not be valid for coffee purchases.

Prosecutor Kiely's Case Will Not Get Special Treatment

Chicago, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Illinois selective service headquarters will follow a hands-off policy regarding the case of John Kiely, prosecutor who has been listed a draft delinquent by his local board.

Kiely was relieved of his duties as assistant district attorney at his own request yesterday, pending a determination of his status. Issuing a statement that the draft board acted "strictly according to regulations" in listing the 40-year-old bachelor prosecutor as a delinquent, state Selective Service Director Paul G. Armstrong said state selective service officials would "not intervene in this case which must be handled according to regulations."

Kiely was listed a draft delinquent Thursday by board 55 which said he had ignored two orders to report for physical examination and a subsequent order to report for induction last Monday. U. S. District Attorney J. Albert Woll said the development was the result of a "mixup" and that Attorney General Francis Biddle had requested a temporary deferment for Kiely.

Woll said Kiely had asked to be relieved of his duties "pending development of the matter with his draft board." Woll said he acceded to the request.

Given Every Consideration Armstrong's statement said that the "detailed report sent to me shows that Mr. Kiely has received every possible consideration at the hands of his local board."

"Technically, Mr. Kiely is a delinquent, but I feel that this unfortunate situation has been caused largely through misunderstanding on his part. Such misunderstanding, however, did not relieve him of his obligation to follow legal orders issued to him by his own local board."

Bernard Garner, attorney and chairman of Kiely's draft board, said he had received a request to postpone Kiely's induction from Col. Louis Boening, assistant state selective service director. He said the request was received after Kiely had been ruled a delinquent. Kiely, who previously was granted a 60-day deferment so Woll could find a successor, said "anyone who thinks I am a draft delinquent is in error."

United States Hold on Guadalcanal Now 'Very Secure': Knox

Japs on New Guinea Are Between Allies and Deep Blue Sea

Washington, Nov. 21.—(AP)—An American drive to wipe out remaining Japanese bases in the Solomon Islands appeared near at hand today as terrific destruction of enemy troops and ships seemed to clinch the United States hold on Guadalcanal.

Announcing for the first time that the American grip on the prized island and its strategic airbase is "now very secure", Secretary of Navy Knox reported yesterday that half of a force of 1,500 Nipponese landed on Guadalcanal had been slaughtered and the rest routed.

Possibility of duplication in the Navy's reports of enemy ships lost in the great American sea victory of last week also was dispelled by Knox who declared 28 Japanese vessels had been sunk. These comprised a battleship, another battleship or heavy cruiser, six heavy cruisers, two light cruisers, six destroyers and 12 transports and cargo ships. Ten more were damaged.

The reported American losses of two light cruisers and six destroyers in the same battle brought the nation's total of destroyed vessels in the Pacific war to 50 combat and 34 non-combat ships since Pearl Harbor.

Official announcements of the Navy and allied headquarters boosted the total Japanese losses to 126 combat and 246 non-combat ships.

Meanwhile, the first American naval officer to return to Pearl Harbor since the defeat of the Japanese armada estimated that the foe's attempts to recapture Guadalcanal had cost the lives of perhaps 10,000 Nipponese on the island alone. From 20,000 to 40,000 more were believed killed in the sinking of eight loaded enemy transports.

Declaring that the Marines, soldiers and sailors felt that they had "been through everything and have taken everything the Japs could offer," Lieut. DeWitt Peterkin, 29, added at Pearl Harbor last night:

"They're optimistic and already are talking about the next move westward."

Lehman Reported Slated for Plum

New York, Nov. 21.—(AP)—The New York Times reported today that President Roosevelt was expected to name retiring Governor Herbert H. Lehman of New York to a world-wide post as administrator of feeding, clothing and rehabilitating countries friendly to or occupied by the United Nations.

The Times dispatch from Washington said:

"Mr. Lehman's assignment is expected to be primarily one of making plans and determining policy for the huge task which confronts the United Nations in rebuilding the world after victory is won."

"He would be responsible, it was said, not only for feeding, clothing and sheltering the starving millions of Europe, Asia and Africa, but would also have charge of the efforts to get these countries back on their feet industrially and agriculturally at the end of the war."

Lehman could not be reached for comment immediately.

Broom Signals Acceptance of 1st Submarine Built on Great Lakes

Manitowoc, Wis., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Homeward bound with a common kitchen broom affixed proudly to her conning tower, the submarine Peto slid smoothly through Lake Michigan early this week.

The broom announced symbolically to the anxious watchers ashore, many of whom had helped build the submarine, that Peto had made a clean sweep of the rigid Navy tests and had passed inspection by a trial board.

Today the humble broom, traditional symbol of successful passage of naval tests, was removed from Peto's tower as the Navy accepted the ship in formal ceremonies at the Manitowoc Ship

Russians Show New Strength in Bloody Give-Take Struggle

Moscow, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Successfully storming heights at Stalingrad and in the Caucasus, the Russians were reported showing fresh strength today in their bloody give-and-take with the German invaders.

During the night a Red army unit dislodged the enemy from a strongly fortified height southeast of Nalchik in the mid-Caucasus and killed 300 Germans, the midday communique said. In the Mzodok sector to the northeast of Nalchik another soviet unit was credited with killing 100 Goemen in a small scale attack such as the Russians have been launching in increasing numbers for several days.

Overnight at Stalingrad attacks by small enemy groups were reported beaten off in the southern outskirts, where Red counter-thrusts had taken a height a few hours earlier.

Nazis Seek Repairs The German command, defeated in its Caucasian drive on Ordzhonikidze apparently was struggling to repair its broken lines southeast of Nalchik and recapture positions lost to Russians counter-blows.

Nazi infantry supported by tanks and Rumanian Alpine troops struck at Russian forces which had thrown them back from the approaches to Ordzhonikidze. The enemy newspaper Red Star declared all these attacks—along the Nalchik plain and in the foothills of the Caucasus mountains—repulsed, with many more dead added to the original axis battle losses of 5,000 or more.

On the central front west of Moscow, 620 German officers and men were declared wiped out in a heavy exchange of artillery, rifle and machine-gun fire, but no change in positions was reported here or elsewhere along the lengthy lines.

Berkeley, Calif., Nov. 21.—(AP)—E. J. Richardson, mailing superintendent of the University of California press, wonders if termites can read.

British Saboteurs Land in Norway—Wiped Out

Berlin (From German Broadcasts), Nov. 21.—(AP)—Two British planes towing troop-filled gliders landed in southern Norway for purposes of sabotage and all the occupants were annihilated, the German high command said today.

"On the night of November 19-20 two British bombers, each towing a glider, flew over south Norway," the communique said.

"One bomber and both gliders were forced to land. Saboteur troops on board were attacked and exterminated."

It was indicated that parachute troops were seizing airports and other strategic centers as the Germans pulled back toward the coast on the Gulf of Gages.

The Berlin radio declared that axis dive bombers were pounding allied columns.

Italy Bombed Terrifically Invasion-jittery Italy meanwhile underwent another terrific assault during the night as Britain's far-ranging bombers soared 1,500 miles round trip across the Alps to blast the royal arsenal city of Turin.

London declared the raid was "the heaviest yet made on Italy," with scores of bombers inflicting fresh havoc on the war center.

The Italian high command said the raiders dropped incendiary bombs "in great quantities" and listed 29 dead and 120 wounded.

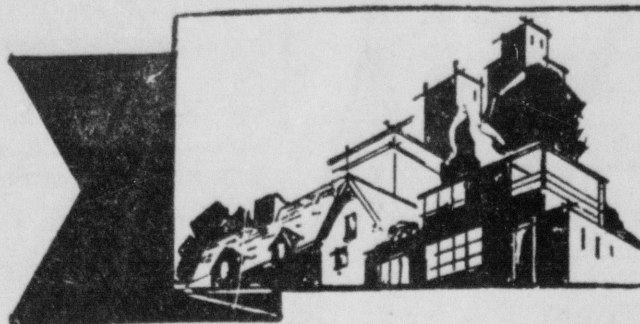

DETAILS FROM LONDON

(By The Associated Press) London, Nov. 21.—Allied armored forces streaming into Tunisia closed with German forces today in the opening phases of a full-scale assault on a Tobruk-like arc of defenses within which the axis has been herded with its back to the sea, around Bizerte and Tunis.

United States, British and Fighting French troops already were reported by North African radio stations to hold all of Tunisia except those two bridgeheads which the axis, with airborne reinforcements, is defending behind barricades hastily

Building Improvements

SMALL HOMES • STORES

APARTMENTS •

MODERNIZATION

by PAUL T. HAAGEN AIA

OLD BUILDING REJUVENATED INCOME RAISED

If a merchant were to look at his own store through the eyes of the casual customer, it would not appear so pleasing or up to date as he believes his merchandise to be.

Old buildings and obsolete store fronts may be brought up to date with new structural glass store fronts.

The patronage of a store depends to a marked degree upon the appearance of the store in its facade and window display facilities. Practically all of us are impressed by appearances, and new customers are attracted and old ones retained by attention to such details.

In these two photographs, the smaller one shows an old residence property as it appeared before being remodeled with a new glass front. The second photograph shows what happened to the old building. It has been changed from an unproductive property to an income-producing store at small cost.

COLOR AND EXPOSURE

The experienced decorator knows that certain colors are best suited for the decoration of various rooms. For instance, red, yellow and orange and the warmer colors are used in rooms that have a northern exposure. They add warmth and the coziness that sunshine gives to a room and which is lacking in a north room.

On the other hand greens and blues are cooler colors and make a south room more restful and cooler.

CONDITIONED AIR

Air conditioning is obtained through combined regulation of temperature, humidity, clean air and the movement of air.

Within a few years our homes will be air conditioned because air conditioning has a vital bearing on health.

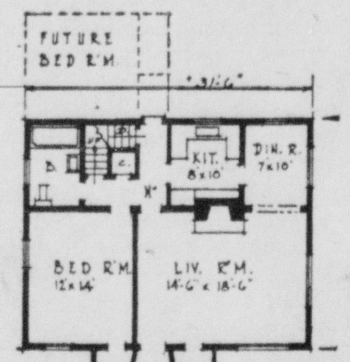

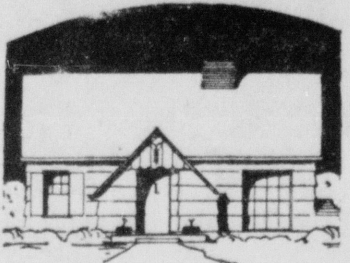

Disorders of the nose and throat due to infectious or irritating dust or dirt are prevented by clean air.

CONVERT ATTIC

If you are planning to convert your attic space into livable quarters it will be absolutely necessary to thoroughly insulate the roof and side walls and to provide plenty of cross ventilation.

If the attic stairs are steep, as most attic stairs are, it will be wise precaution against accidents to install a strong hand rail.

Expandable House

Here is a small defense house designed by Clyde Simmons, Architect, that has good possibilities of expansion at some future date. Not only is an extra bedroom possible on the first floor, but two small bedrooms may be built into the second floor.

FIREPROOF SHINGLES

When 23 per cent of all residential fires start on the roof, it is of prime importance to eliminate that danger. By covering the old roof with fireproof shingles, the home owner can assure himself of fire protection from roof sources as long as the house stands. Fireproof shingles are available in a great variety of styles and colors to match any architectural design. They add to the beauty of the home and add a worthwhile protection.

LOOSE PLASTER

If the plaster around a kitchen sink, bathtub or lavatory falls away, remove broken and loose parts, and patch with a Portland cement patching compound. It will be waterproof and stay in place. It may be very neatly done.

PAINTING TECHNIQUE

It is impossible to cover up bad brush marks and sloppy work in the priming coat with the second coat of paint. For this reason the first or priming coat should be laid on as carefully as the second when only two coats are applied. It is better to apply three coats.

—Read the ads carefully in this evening's Telegraph if you want to be thrifty.

FORMS BEING USED IN NEW FIREPLACES

In the past, unless a fireplace was constructed by a capable mason who knew exactly how to build it according to the rules in use for generations, good fireplaces were rare and the chimneys often caused smoke in the room.

Now a sheet metal form has been developed which is placed above the hearth before the masonry is added, the latter being built around the form. This makes faulty construction of the flue virtually impossible.

This not only corrects the difficulty of poor construction but the walls of the form are double so that heat which ordinarily is lost in the chimney is conserved and sent out into the room through an extra opening. The opening is covered by a handsome grille so that twice the amount of heat ordinarily received from the fireplace is sent into the room without extra fuel cost.

These forms come in a variety of sizes and the home owner who uses one may feel greatly relieved in the assurance that he will secure a non-smoking fireplace.

SCREENS

Insect protection by screening doors and windows has made rapid progress in the last few years. Many homes have the lower half of the window screened, others have full length screens over the entire window opening. Of course the latter method is to be preferred as it permits the lowering of the upper half of a double hung window and gives better ventilation in the room.

Screens are no longer unattractive in material or design. Steel, bronze, copper, aluminum and monel metal are the raw materials from which screens are fabricated.

There are sliding screens, stationary screens and rolling screens.

The rolling screens operate on a roller and slide in a side guide. The roller is built into the head of the window and when the screen is not in use is simply rolled up out of the way.

AMPLE CLOSET SPACE

Very few houses have too many closets; on the contrary, most people find there are too few to accommodate the needs of the household. But there are spaces and locations in every house, practically, where a closet can be installed. The space under the stairway may be utilized for this purpose; they may be built in to the room in the form of cabinets or corners may be turned into closets and the irregular arrangement made a decorative feature of the room.

THE FRAMING OF A HOUSE

The wood framing of a house is most important. That is, the joists, studs, bridging and rafters. Timbers should be of a proper size to carry the imposed load and nailing is important.

Firestops should be built into the wall, which prevent fire from traveling up between the studs in the wall.

DAMP BASEMENT WALLS

If your basement walls are damp after a heavy rainfall, especially at the corners, it is probably due to leaking of the downspouts where they connect with the tiles at the grade or possibly there is not adequate splash block used at the bottom of the downspouts if they are not connected into tiles.

RADIATOR COVERS

The dust and dirt should not be allowed to accumulate beneath radiator covers. Install a cover that is easy to keep clean, and then do not neglect this part of the dusting route.

MIRROR MAKES ROOM SEEM LARGER

The use of a mirror on a wall above a fireplace or in a recess will give a room a much more spacious appearance.

Fix Up the Older Home

Because of the great population shift in defense areas throughout this country, it has been found that there has been an inevitable lack of housing in these areas.

In most of these sections are many old houses that are an untapped source of habitation which if remodeled and reconditioned, may be brought up to full usefulness and made to pay a revenue to their owners.

It is a defense program that these old houses should be modernized and the owners will be aiding the nation's defense efforts and will also increase the value of their property.

The basic repairs will start with the roof, which should be made thoroughly water-tight. Walls should be examined for leaks and insulation should be included. Partitions should be re-located and a plan worked out for the most modern arrangement of apartments that can be devised in the old house.

Of course electric wiring should be checked, as well as the heating plant, and heating should be considered very carefully by an expert.

GOOD CONSTRUCTION

Sound construction is a matter of careful attention to the details of building. All foundations are of the utmost importance and properly constructed foundations should have heavy square footings that bear evenly on the soil which supports the walls.

Good footings should also be under all posts and piers.

If a basement wall shows cracks, there probably has been poor foundation construction.

SINK CABINETS

In the new metal sink cabinets now available for almost every type of kitchen, there are many shapes and sizes. They may be of steel or wood but all may be secured in beautiful colors. These cabinets are placed under the sink and have commodious compartments of drawers or shelves. They transform an aging kitchen. The steel cabinets are of course most sanitary.

GAS HOT WATER HEATER

Every gas hot water heater should have an unobstructed flue to the outer air and should be so adjusted that the gas will never go below a certain level. Then a static control should be on the heater and the coil in the heater should be kept clean by brushing of once a month with a steel brush.

CHIMNEYS

Chimneys are a fire hazard when poorly constructed. Such a chimney may be a source of much trouble in a house. A flue lining should be built into every chimney. This reduces the possibility of fire.

A chimney should not be used as a prop for the house construction and certainly no wood framing should be built into the masonry of the chimney.

REFINISHING WAXED FLOORS

If a floor has been waxed and you wish to varnish, it should be cleaned carefully with turpentine and gasoline to remove all traces of wax before any other finish is placed upon it. Bare spots or worn spots should be sanded smooth and restrained and filled.

PLASTER CEILING

By plastering the ceiling of the basement on metal lath, the home owner secures a certain benefit and resistance to the spread of fire from that portion of the house. In addition it will greatly improve the appearance of the basement and also keep the first floors warmer.

CIRCUIT FOR REFRIGERATOR

If the electric refrigerator is put on a separate circuit it will do away with the light flickers caused by going on and off of the motor.

WALL SPACE

Always plan wall space in the living room for a piano, davenport and desk. Chairs, radio and cabinets should next be considered.

INSTALL METAL CHUTE

A metal coal chute is better than the old-fashioned window. It is break-proof, weather-proof, thief-proof and attractive.

Question Mark in Worker Estimates Is the Housewife

Washington — The question mark in all estimates of the available supply of workers in the United States is the housewife.

How many housewives are working and able—and in the right cities and towns—to take necessary jobs?

How long will it take to train them? How well and how long do they stand the strains and demands of the double job—factory or office work and home work? Or will they have to break their homes?

Manpower Chairman Paul McNutt says women comprise "the one great reservoir" of workers remaining, predicts that 5,000,000 women must be added to total number gainfully employed by the end of 1943.

But is that possible?

29 Million Homemakers

The social security board estimated that on April 1 there were 29.8 million women (aged 14 and over) in the "homemaker" classification—including single women "at home"—not gainfully employed but able to work not in institutions nor in school.

The recent manpower study of the Brookings institutions divides this homemaker group as follows: Single women—1.9 million; married and without children under 16—14.5 million; married and with children under 16—10.4 million; married and with children 16 and over—10.4 million.

The "others" must be disregarded in manpower studies, Brookings report says, because they have too many or too young children to leave their homes. That brings the total down to 1 million.

KNOT HOLE NEWS

Issued Every Saturday by Home Lumber Company

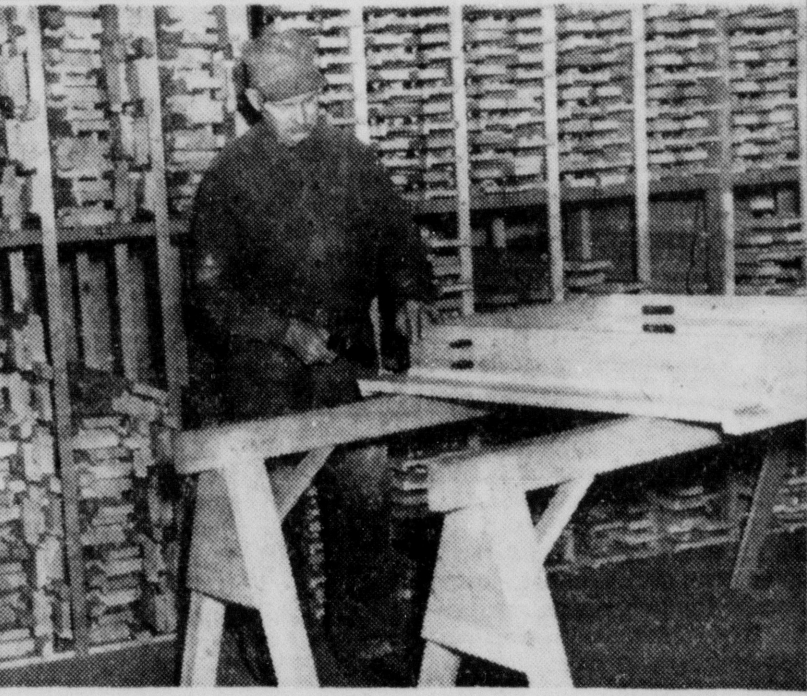

This window frame department of ours is the answer to your problem when wintry winds or spring rains have called your attention to a rotted-out drafty or leaky window frame. It also simplifies that desire to add a window to this or that room to gain more light or ventilation.

We feel confident that sometime or other you have considered making these improvements but hesitated because they seemed rather complicated and you pictured a long delay while they were being made up and shipped from some distant point.

The window frame that you want and require is right here in Dixon. True, they come "knock down," but it is a simple matter to assemble them. The parts are all cut to fit, with the heads and sills plainly marked and bundled by size. The sides are marked and bundled by size too, so all you have to do is to put the parts in their proper places, square them up and nail them fast.

For an example, we had Ed Somers complete one for you. This is a frame for a single window and it is now prepared to be installed into the opening. The sash cord pulleys are there ready to receive the sash weight rigging.

From the size of this frame you can readily appreciate why we stock them "knocked down." If we were unable to neatly stack these parts, as you see them here, it would require thousands of square feet of floor space to store the bulky assembled unit in sizes necessary to service this community. As we mentioned before, this is a frame for a single window. We also have frames for twin window, triple window and quadruple window installations ranging in size from 12-inch by 12-inch glass on up. If you are wondering if we have the windows to fit this large assortment of frames, keep your eye on the Knot Hole News. We will soon take you through a window department that is the envy of every lumber dealer in the northern part of the state.

So far in this series we have identified our place of business, explained the details handled in our office that are necessary for your convenience, illustrated a fleet of trucks maintained for your service, flashed a bill board of nationally famous building material trade marks, taken you on a trip through our Storm Sash Department, Glass department and Combination Door department. If you have followed us, we hope you agree that we have something here. Phone 57 or 72.

High School Dramatic Club Scores Hit in Mark Twain Tale

Although the weather outside last evening was damp and cheerless, inside the Dixon high school auditorium, the Dixon High School Dramatic club cheered its audience with a rollicking performance of the new full-length dramatization of Mark Twain's immortal story, "The Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court." An "all star" cast of earnest young players contributed equally to the successful staging of this delightfully entertaining story of a shrewd and clever Yankee who finds himself in King Arthur's court, and who develops all the miracles of the twentieth century to baffle the not-too-hospitable court.

Betty Orr, in the role of Queen Guenever, offered an excellent characterization of a domineering queen who practically runs the good-natured and somewhat discouraged King Arthur, portrayed extremely well by Loren Wilson. Darlene Lambert was appropriately awesome as the scheming, black-hearted Queen Morgan Le Fay, and Lewis Drummond, as her villainous partner, the magician Merlin, played his part with equal realism.

The roles of Sandy and Elaine, young ladies of the court, were charmingly played by Joan Hooker and Patricia Moore. George Gibson, as Hank Bennett, the Connecticut Yankee, mastered a difficult and hilariously funny role, and delighted the audience with his antics; and Ruthmarie Brown breezed through the part of his sister, Marion, with both ease and skill. The role of Mrs. Bennett, the harassed mother of Hank, was handled expertly by Joanne Gannon.

Clarence, the mischievous page boy, was played with convincing vigor by Richard Wagner, while Lloyd Warren Walter and Philip Reilly showed how they would have been excellent knights of old in the roles of Sir Sagrator and Sir Launcelot.

All in all, it was a highly entertaining show, and the elaborate costuming bespoke long hours of consultation and effort on the part of the properties committee. Miss Olga Eneroth was the capable faculty director for the show, and Miss Alice Richardson was her assistant, superintending the following student committees: Business, Bonnie Hoon, Rosemary Vaile, Beverly Edous, Delores Frerichs, and Joy Heckman; properties, Lucille Heckman, Ellen Kirk, Shirley Welch, Dorothy Gorham and Frances Jones; stage, James Radke and John Selgestad.

Butler-Gecan Vows Are Read This Morning

White satin and lace fashioned the wedding dress worn by Miss Catherine Elizabeth Gecan, daughter of the Frank Gecans of Oregon, for her marriage this morning to Robert William Butler, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Butler of Chana, solemnized at St. Mary's Catholic church in Oregon. The Rev. Father A. M. Kreckel heard the vows at 8 o'clock.

Lace inserts trimmed Miss Gecan's gown. A train of valley lilies held her fingertip veil in place, and she carried white pompoms. Mr. Gecan gave his daughter in marriage.

Her bridesmaid, Miss Mable Westerford of Freeport, wore light blue taffeta with a deep blue bodice, and carried yellow pompoms. Earl E. Cline of Rockford served as best man. Ushers were the bridegroom's brother-in-law, John Haase, and Edward Gecan, the bride's brother.

The nuptial musicians were Miss Catherine Sauer, organist, and Mrs. Minnie Sauer, vocalist. Their selections included the Gounod Ave Maria, "On This Day," "O Beautiful Mother," and the wedding marches.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Gecan wore black satin with a shoulder bouquet of spider mums. The bridegroom's mother had a similar bouquet pinned to her plum-colored dress.

Following the service, a wedding breakfast was served at the Gecan home. Later, the couple left on a short wedding trip. The bride's going away ensemble was a brown suit with luggage tan accessories, and a corsage of bronze mums.

"Kay" is a graduate of Oregon Community high school and is employed at the Citizen's State bank of Mount Morris. "Bill" is an alumnus of Rochelle Township high school, and is with the Barber-Colman company in Rockford.

TO MILWAUKEE

Newly-made Dixon friends of Mr. and Mrs. Donald C. Marks of 212 Crawford avenue regret that Mr. Marks' firm is recalling him to Milwaukee, and that the couple will be leaving about the first of the month for that Wisconsin city to reside. Mr. and Mrs. Marks came to Dixon about two years ago, having spent a year in Clinton, Iowa before coming here.

Mrs. Marks has been working industriously at the surgical dressing headquarters of the Red Cross, serving as vice chairman of the staff. She was co-chairman of the ticket committee for the Service Club's Charity Ball on Thursday evening, and is active in the Presbyterian Women's association.

LIEVAN SCHOOL HAS SUPPER

About 45 patrons of the Lievan school district gathered at the school Thursday evening for their annual Thanksgiving supper. Afterward, several films of pictures were shown by the teacher, Mrs. Ray Herbert of Dixon and games of bingo, in which five favors were awarded.

Corp. Frank Heaton was a special guest. He left yesterday for San Francisco, Calif., after a ten-day furlough at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Heaton of Dist. No. 31.

DESSERT-BRIDGE

Mrs. A. V. Lund held a guest tally in the contract games for an afternoon club of eight, whose members met Thursday at the home of Mrs. Elwin Wadsworth. A dessert course preceded bridge. Play will be resumed in two weeks at the home of Mrs. F. W. Lynch.

Oregon Couple Exchange Vows at Parsonage

Marriage vows of Miss Charlotte May Brown, daughter of Mrs. Elmer Brown of 400 South Fifth street, Oregon, and Stanley Joworski son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Joworski of 7933 Ogden avenue, Chicago, were solemnized at 5:30 p. m. Thursday at the parsonage of Oregon's Methodist church. The Rev. Paul E. Turk performed the ceremony.

The bride, who is a member of the church choir, wore a street dress of powder blue wool with brown accessories for her wedding. Her shoulder bouquet contained pink carnations.

Miss Ruth Ehmen, former high school classmate of the bride, was maid of honor, and James Brown served his sister's bridegroom as best man. Miss Ehmen was dressed in gold wool with black accessories, accented by a corsage of bronze pompoms and autumn leaves.

A reception was held for 20 guests at the Brown home, following the ceremony. The bride's sisters, Mrs. Clark Smith of Mount Morris and Mrs. Frederick Davis of Lighthouse assisted with the serving.

Afterward, Mr. Joworski and his bride left for Chicago on a brief wedding trip. For traveling, the new Mrs. Joworski donned a suit of gold wool, with a mink coat and brown accessories.

The bride was graduated from Oregon high school with the class of 1938 and from Lorene's School of Beauty Culture in Dixon. At present, she is manager and operator of Sea's Beauty Parlor in Oregon. After Dec. 1, the couple will be at home to friends in a newly-furnished apartment at 400 South Fifth street, Oregon.

Wa-Tan-Yans Are Dressing Dolls for Goodfellows

With the approach of the holiday season, groups as well as individuals, think of sharing with others, in order that less fortunate persons may have happiness also. Among the generous givers are business and professional women of Wa-Tan-Ye, whose real reason for being in service, and they are busy now with plans for Christmas charity work that is to include shouldering the responsibilities that accompany Dixon's Goodfellow project.

Following a spaghetti supper at Bevilacqua's Soda Grill on Thursday evening, the chapter members hurried to their Christmas workshop in the Woodman hall, where dozens of dolls are being dressed for Santa Claus. These dolls, together with many others being exhibited by groups and individuals, will be on view at a doll show which the chapter will sponsor at the Elks club for two days, Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 28-29, to raise additional Goodfellow funds.

So far, the committee reports, entries have been received for every division of the doll show except for humorous dolls. They point out there is an excellent opportunity for receiving an award in this division, as there is yet time to list entries at the Edna Nattress Dress Shop or the Gift and Art Shop before the deadline next Wednesday. All dolls being entered for the show are to be in place at the Elks club by 10 a. m. on Saturday.

The show will be open from 2 to 8 p. m. on Saturday and from 2 to 5 p. m. Sunday. At least 65 dolls are being costumed in everything from slacks to party dresses by the chapter members, who are continuing their appeal for more dolls for the Goodfellow Christmas baskets.

At their meeting on Thursday evening, the chapter members approved a donation of $10 to the Red Cross for soldiers' kits. Miss Frances Patrick, Miss Lucile Stauffer and Mrs. Lucia Roberts compose the November hostess committee.

MRS. MORRIS IS HOSTESS

Mrs. Robert Kernan, a new-comer to Dixon from Sioux City, Iowa, received a guest favor, when Mrs. Arthur Morris entertained at luncheon and bridge yesterday. Sixteen guests circled the luncheon table at The Coffee House, with contract games following.

A Thought for Today

I do set my bow in the cloud, and it shall be for a token of a covenant between me and the earth.—Genesis 9:13.

Thou shinest fair with many a lovely ray,

Common Cause Creates Unity

Some observers have feared that when the new congress is seated after the first of the year there will be disunity and bickering between the Democrats and Republicans, who are almost evenly divided in the house of representatives. The senate also has a stronger representation of Republican. Republicans and "conservative" Democrats, who think a great deal alike nowadays, might team up now and then against the New Dealers. In such a case we would see a majority of congress opposing the president in some domestic matters, but still unable to force him to see or act as they wish.

Nevertheless, every member of congress was elected properly by the people of his own state or district. The will of this new congress, elected only recently by the people and representing the latest "poll", should prevail at Washington. Under such a circumstance, the president has it within his power to maintain unity or to obstruct the new legislators.

History proves that the finest example of national unity, embracing all classes of people, have occurred when a leader was able to find an issue upon which all, or a vast majority, could agree, and which was beneficial to all.

Mr. Roosevelt was elected first upon a platform calling for tax reduction, balanced budgets, elimination of governmental waste and the restoration of prosperity. There was no objection to such a program if any quarter. In fact, some of those closest to the administration complained because there was so little opposition to the program itself.

The means employed to bring it about, however, created disunity at a time when a different program, leading to the same purpose, could have confined the opposition to purely political grounds. There is a vast difference between political opposition and personal opposition.

By Mr. Roosevelt's next term we were to have prosperity based upon the program of creating higher standards of living for the so-called lower classes. This also was an excellent program, except that the wherewithall for the higher standards of living for the lower income group was to be taken from the higher income group, without at the same time permitting the higher income group to find means to "fork over" to the poor.

As result, the large corporations have in the last ten years or so paid out in wages, taxes, maintenance and other expenses, billions upon billions of dollars more than they have received in income. Under such a program the deep end must come in view sooner or later.

It is reasonable to suggest that if we are to have national unity, a program must be devised under which all groups, capital, labor, the middle class and the professions, can thrive and restore some of the fat upon which the nation has fed itself for years. Such a program is not impossible of achievement.

For the time being, of course, there is a war upon which there is unity of purpose. This discussion has been confined to domestic grounds for the reason that behind the war effort there always lurks the shadow of the old quarrels which were not only political, but personal. The war leads naturally to peace, and the coming of peace would put the old arguments uppermost again. The time to prepare for domestic peace is during a war—particularly when there is a congress which would be glad to listen to proposals designed to help everybody.

"I Shall Not Want"

(Christian Science Monitor)

"I often repeated the Psalm, 'The Lord is my Shepherd; I shall not want,'" wrote Vern Haugland, Associated Press correspondent, lost in the New Guinea jungle for six weeks. "I would be unable to go one step farther, and then I would remember, 'I shall not want,'" and sure enough, there'd be some berries or chewable grass or a creek with good water just ahead."

Many a British or American lad is having occasion to remember his early training these days and to rely on the truths he was taught at his mother's knee or by some consecrated Sunday school teacher. This courageous correspondent says he knows God saved him.

"Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies," runs the best known of all the Psalms. Though it was only berries and grass, yet "the table" was sufficient to preserve Vern Haugland. And did he remember when he took off his socks and gave them to a shoeless companion, "I shall not want"?

Time to Begin Reaping

There has been criticism of our policy toward Vichy France. That policy rested upon a gamble. One element in the gamble, it can be disclosed, was the hope that by over-tolerance we could convince the French people of our deep sympathy against the time when we might come to their deliverance with armies.

That time may be close. (That is logic; the high command has not told us.) Soon we shall see whether we have helped the French to salvage the self-respect and fighting spirit to refuse to heed their axis-controlled government when it seeks to make them resist our efforts to free them from slavery.

A Desirable Clause

The manpower draft measure now under most serious consideration contains a provision that no person assigned to war work by the government shall be required to join any union or organization of employees unless he chooses to do so.

We think this clause should be included in the final draft. If labor unions now on the defensive because of certain short-sighted attitudes are really wise they will not attempt to oppose this provision.

Fair Enough

by WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York, Nov. 21.—Suppose we examine the president's request for blanket authority to suspend the immigration laws for duration, the refusal of the house ways and means committee to grant this authority, and the comments of Attorney General Biddle. The request included tariff and espionage laws, but the immigration law seems to have been the one that the committee choked on, so let us stick to that.

Immigration laws have been vexatious at certain points along the Canadian border, principally at Detroit, but do not appear to have impaired the industrial war effort there. In the southwest, where Mexicans are urgently needed in the copper mines and cotton fields from time to time, including now, and become a burden at other times, the law is a pain in the neck to the Mexican migrant and to the community in which he finds himself stranded and destitute in hard times.

Of late, there has been need for Mexicans and the Mexican government, generously forgetting that he bundled a lot of Mexican laborers and their families back home a few years ago to lighten the relief rolls, apparently has been willing to permit a number of them to accept our invitation. This time, however, with certain assurances from us that they will be treated better.

That a national government which did not hesitate to trade 50 destroyers for territorial rights in certain British possessions would risk losing or prolonging the war out of fastidious regard for the letter of the immigration laws along the southwestern border is a suggestion beyond belief of the most naive.

The Gimmick in this request as to the immigration laws was the fact that at any time during the actual war, and for the indefinite but probably long period of the peace negotiations, the president would have blanket authority from congress to permit the entry from Europe of a type of immigrant who might be desirable in the eyes of the administration, but displeased with our own form of government, society and economy, and unwelcome in the hearts of the American people, in other words, the Communist of the sedentary European radical who is not a Communist only because he can't prove he is. There is no doubt that this government has a warm spot in its heart and in its brains for individuals who, though they may deny that they are Communists, admire everything that avowed Communists like and detest everything that Americans cherish, except liquor, but including our form of government. There are thousands of this kind in Europe waiting for a chance to come over and reform us.

The proposed authority would have given the president permission to let them in by the boat-load and though it is possible to do this anyway, by evasion of existing laws, a refusal of explicit permission to do so is good for the record of congressional intent. This was done flagrantly before the war and for some time after the war began.

Biddle said it was ridiculous to require registration of prisoners of war brought here and the payment of an $8 tax on them, but it is equally ridiculous of Biddle to mention this. Every prisoner of war would be carefully recorded anyway and the payment of the head tax, if the letter of the law be insisted upon, amounts to no more than the transfer of so much money from one column to another on the government's own books.

Biddle then told the committee: "I can assure you that, in asking for the legislation, the president had no intention of exercising the power in that way, or in any other way, so as to remove immigration barriers for any purpose not directly connected with the war effort. I am certain that neither now nor later will he consider using the powers granted him by this bill for any purpose other than for which they were granted to him."

The answer to that was given, however, in the establishment of the $25,000 salary limitation by James F. Byrnes, the Director of Economic Stabilization. This proposal, it has recently been discovered, was first advanced in the platform of the Communist party in 1928. It was revived last winter by a CIO union, some of whose controlling bosses had spent a long time in Russia, and was encouraged by Mrs. Roosevelt. It was twice proposed to congress by the president, and twice rejected, and it is clearly stated in the record that, in granting the president special powers under the stabilization act, there was no intention to approve the limitations.

Thus when Biddle said "neither now nor later will he consider using the powers granted him by the bill for any other purpose than that for which they were granted

Food Shortages in Spain, Rather Than Army, Stops Hitler

Nazis Would Find Poor Picking If They Invaded Peninsula

New York, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Spain's food shortage, rather than its army, may restrain the nazis from marching across the Pyrenees into the Spanish peninsula.

Some say Adolf Hitler's next move might be "protective occupation" of Spain against the Americans and the British who are on the march in northern Africa.

But the nazis in the past have shown a liking for easy pickings. And if they go into Spain they will find life hard, as the some 20,000 German business men already in Spain must have told their government.

Official prices, according to Spanish government estimates of the cost of living in all the provincial capitals, have climbed from 100 in 1936 to an index of 247.7 in the first nine months of 1942.

But the real living cost rise, as reflected by prices in the black market—where goods are bought and sold illegally—is estimated at 300 based on 100 in 1940 before the black market reached grand proportions.

While Spain is short of food and the poor frequently go hungry, the rich can buy meals rivaling those of pre-war Paris in the best restaurants and hotels, travelers from Spain report. It's illegal, but tolerated, and the prices for a meal with wine run from $5 to $9 per person.

Poor Transportation
An invading army also would find Spain's transportation system in bad shape.

There were 3,046 locomotives and 78,971 freight cars in Spain before the war, and about half were lost in the civil war.

At the civil war's end the government put all its broken down and war damaged freight cars on sale at a fixed price. Private citizens and companies bought up thousands, had them repaired at their own expense and rented them out privately to a transport-starved country.

During 1941 and 1942 an owner, in a few days, could get back every cent that he had paid for buying and repairing a freight car simply on the rent.

Lack of transportation has caused the price of coal in Madrid to rise to $30 a ton on the black market.

If Americans think their meat shortage is bad, let them consider Spain's. Meat is a luxury only for the rich. The average family cannot afford it.

In Spain last winter bread became very yellow and was made of corn flour and chickpeas. It had little pieces of sawdust in it. That hurt the poor. The rich wouldn't buy it. They preferred to buy black market flour and bake their own bread.

Dirksen Alarmed About Extension of Executive Powers

Chicago, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Rep. Everett M. Dirksen, Republican congressman from Pekin, told the Illinois Agricultural Association meeting that "the most alarming tendency in government is the expansion of the powers of the executive at the expense of the legislative and judicial branches".

Dirksen said that "to be sure, we must give up some liberties during the war, but we want them back after the war is over".

Executive pressure, he said, made possible the defeat of the farm bloc when it opposed the selling of 125,000,000 bushels of wheat at 85 per cent of parity. "We had that thoroughly licked," Dirksen said, "until a memorandum from an executive source weakened some of the votes. That was unfair and dangerous exercise of executive influence".

GEN. J. B. M. HERTZOG

Capetown, Nov. 21.—(AP)—General J. B. M. Hertzog, 76, who lost his post as prime minister of the Union of South Africa after the outbreak of war in 1939 when parliament voted down his proposal for strict neutrality, died today. He had entered a hospital here two months ago for an abdominal operation.

He had served his country as prime minister for 16 years when war came. Instead of following Great Britain immediately in breaking with Germany, Hertzog proposed that relations with belligerent countries "persist unchanged".

Parliament, however, voted to sever relations with Germany and Field Marshal Jan Christian Smuts was named to form a new cabinet.

Later Hertzog resigned as a member of parliament and espoused a National Socialist "new order". At various times he proposed that South Africa's state of war with Germany be ended and, before his resignation, offered a resolution in parliament for peace with Germany.

Basic "A" gas ration books were supplied GROU workers from stations located in the plant area. Half a dozen registration sites were set up for the convenience of the workers and the majority of the plant personnel took advantage of the service. Ration boards in northern Illinois were thereby relieved of considerable work in allotting the initial ration coupons.

Wednesday, Thursday and Friday were the days set aside for registration. Applications for essential or occupational driving ration books were accepted by the plant's transportation committee for scrutiny and certification. The numerous boards in the immediate territory will have final jurisdiction over the allotment of supplemental rations, however.

Inasmuch as the plant is wholly dependent upon bus transportation and passenger car travel to bring its workers to the area every day, the proportioning of additional gas becomes a problem which must receive careful consideration.

Passenger car drivers must carry maximum loads in order to be eligible for "B" or "C" books. The only exceptions to this rule being governed by the individuals' ability to carry additional riders because of an irregular working schedule, residence in a community where no other workers are coming to the same place of employment or some other equally easily understandable case of necessity.

Government cars are likewise required to be registered and only vital and essential needs are recognized as grounds for the issuance of extended rations.

Snow fences have made their appearance the last week in various places in the plant area. They are substantially the same type used to prevent excessive drifts along the state highways. Snow removal equipment lies in wait for the first blizzard and traffic of all kinds should continue as usual.

Shortly after the British-American lease-lend arrangement had been completed the U. S. transferred a number of destroyers for certain land privileges in a number of islands. British mandated Trinidad was one of the U. S. theatres of operation in building

Holiday Packages Should be Packed Well, Sent Early

Despite wartime conditions and their effect on transportation, Christmas traffic this year is not expected to fall much below that of 1941. J. G. Graham, local agent of Railway Express Agency, said today.

Retail stores in Dixon are well stocked for the holidays, due to long range planning. A considerable part of the goods offered are no longer being manufactured and as replacements will not always be possible, late shoppers may find little left to buy, according to Mr. Graham.

While they are extremely busy with war business, express employees will make every effort to provide their usual holiday service and will remain on the job on the 25th, to handle late deliveries.

Cooperation Asked
"Besides urging early shipping," said Mr. Graham, "we are asking the public to cooperate in other direction. Holiday gifts should be very carefully packed, with due consideration for the nature of the contents. If such shipments are fragile, that word should be plainly marked on the outside. Complete and legible addressing, including street and number in the recipient's address, is another vital factor in assuring good delivery."

Calls for holiday shipments will be made as heretofore, but under limitations set by government authority.

SERIAL STORY THE EDGE OF DARKNESS

BY WILLIAM WOODS

THE STORY: While their fathers in Trollness are planning action against their German conquerors, Margit Osterholm and Karen Stenzard are at the mountain sater, where they had almost forgotten the war and the occupation of the village. Morten Mortensen, a neighbor, gives Karen a pair of skin she admires. A lanky, bold-looking German trooper approaches the sater, and laughs at the girls' efforts to chase him away.

AN SS OFFICER ARRIVES

CHAPTER VI

HE kept looking at her. It made her breath come faster to see his eyes on her.

"I hate you," she cried. "We're enemies. No decent Norwegian girl..."

"Karen!" Margit clapped a hand over the younger girl's mouth.

He burst into delighted laughter. His eyes got smaller and smaller, with little wrinkles in their corners.

Karen stamped her foot. "Stop," she cried. His face sobered immediately. "How did you know my name?"

He leaned back without answering, pulled a mouth organ out of his hip pocket, and watching them quizzically, with one eyebrow lifted, tapped it on his knee and began to play.

"How did you know my name?" Karen cried again petulantly.

He stopped. "I saw you one day last June," he said. "You had on black boots and a yellow kerchief, and were planting in the doctor's garden."

"Oh," she said, and then a moment later in a lower voice, "But now you have to go."

The soldier looked brown and healthy and happy. He had no intention of going.

Margit saw them look at each other, and got up stiffly and went into the hut by herself. A strange, faint feeling came over her. The mouth organ played outside. Then it stopped. Something was in the air. It was wrong. Softly, beyond the sun-drenched hill, she heard their voices. "Oh, Karen," she thought suddenly, "please..."

And then all at once Karen was in the door. Margit ran to her. "What happened?"

"She felt Karen cling, sobbing, to her shoulders."

"What happened?" she kept asking. "What happened?"

Karen broke free and ran out again. The soldier was gone. Margit followed her. "Karen, what happened?"

But Karen would not look at her. "I never want to see him again," she whispered. "Never, never." Then she whirled round and cried passionately, "We are Norwegians. I don't like him. Do I?"

"No," Margit said, and went to her, shyly at first, then bravely, took her and held her close, stroking her hair. "No, Karen," she said. Over and over again. "No, no, of course not."

THE hotel was a rambling, gabled structure of dark brown wood, that stood in a grassy clearing half a mile up the hill. An enormous red and black swastika flag rippled gently from a pole on the porch roof. From the broad steps, one could see down over the pine tops to the village itself, and westward out beyond, to the sea, sparkling in summer sunlight.

In peacetime, the town had been something of a tourist resort, and Englishmen and Americans had come up on the excursion boats from Trondheim and Bergen, and on summer evenings gathered at the hotel, where there were music on the veranda and Japanese lanterns strung between the trees.

But now everything was changed. The gray-green uniformed troops were quartered there, and milled about the restaurant evenings, talking and drinking beer. During the day, when they were down in the village on duty, or else going through maneuvers back in the hills, the place was deserted.

In the hotel restaurant, some 25 or 30 soldiers were sitting at the round tables playing cards or talking in low voices. The room, broad, with a beamed ceiling, was warm and hazy from cigarette smoke. Gerd Bjarnesen sat stern and decorous in her alcove under the stairs and watched.

Even at this hour the men were in regulation uniform, complete and ready for inspection. She marveled sometimes at their adherence to rule, even in conversation. Tonight, for example, not a word had been said about the debacle of Stokund (it was forbidden), even though they could hardly have had much else on their minds. "It is as bad for them," she thought, "as for us, not to know."

One thing she had noticed over and over again, how even in the midst of laughter, a man's eyes would be fixed on his neighbor's lips as if to drag out something that lay beyond the words. They were tense, even when resting. It showed in their quick, nervous reactions when one of them mentioned the war. Yet they were the battle-trained troops who had marched into Prague and thundered over the bloody plains of Poland, who had fought six of the great armies of Europe and never lost.

She feared and hated and respected them with a silence and fixedness that not even they could have altered. For she saw them not as manifestations in themselves, not as episode, but as climax to all of her uneventful 40 years. She forgot in her hatred of them her own plainness and barrenness, the loneliness, and the still rankling fear of her stern father that had oppressed her even after his death. The three things most important to her, the hotel, the memory of her father, and the young boy Trygve, who was not her son, faded into the welter of daily trivia before the new, physical fact of a company of men who sat every evening in her restaurant, and talked, smoked, drank, and played at cards.

It was about 9 o'clock when Karl came in from his day's leave. The men greeted him with curt nods. He waved at them, sat down, and ordered beer.

Two soldiers were shooting darts over in the corner. Toward the front of the room, a bridge game was going on. The players were all older men, and went at their game with great seriousness.

DOWN near the cashier's cage an argument developed. Phrases floated over. "Two million men... mine throwers... the attack on Kiev." The corporal had gone over. Everyone heard his voice, unexpectedly loud. "Must you always be talking about the war?"

The men sitting at the tables looked up at him, and one or two shifted in their chairs. He fumbled for words. "You start thinking about war, and soon... soon you can't think of anything else." The voices in the room died away. "I, for one," said the corporal, "am sick of the... the talk."

A tightness came into the air. The mouths of the bridge players froze in the midst of laughter. The fat one stopped with a card suspended, and looked at his partner. Somebody cleared his throat. A fumble opened and a giant of a man in an SS officer's black uniform strode quickly into the room. He turned his shaggy head right, then left. The soldiers snapped to their feet. Gerd Bjarnesen came sliding out from behind her desk.

"I wish to see Captain Konig," the stranger said in a clear voice. An orderly scurried from a table. "This way, sir." The men sat down. The room was unnaturally still.

The dedication ceremony brought to a climax three years of effort by various civic groups and organizations. Efforts to secure a new annex were started in 1939 by the local chamber of commerce, and the next year the chamber received the active support of the board of education. Erection of the building was assured in February of 1941 when a referendum on issuance of $125,000 worth of building bonds by the school district was carried by a seven to one majority.

The new building is of modern design, and the auditorium-gymnasium proper has a 94 by 60 foot recreation space for games. The bleachers will seat nearly 700 spectators, and under the stage are stored an additional 700 chairs for use when needed.

Floor space in the basement totals 6,000 feet. This will be used for industrial arts and farm shop departments as well as for adult defense courses during the winter.

Love Song Becomes Hymn of Death for California Woman

Salt Lake City, Nov. 21—(AP)—A snatch of popular love song became a hymn of death for a California woman on a lonely highway in eastern Utah.

Two men began bludgeoning Mrs. Abigail Agnes Williams, 48, of San Leandro, said Agent Jay C. Herman of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, after one of them, as a signal, began singing the song, "Love Letters in the Sand."

Investigator Newman said that Roy Edward Ritchey, 24, signed a written confession to participation in the killing of Mrs. Williams on the Utah-Ouay Indian reservation Oct. 12, taking her automobile and $6 from her purse.

In the confession Newman said, Ritchey accused his companion, James Joseph Roedel, 26, of striking the first blow. Roedel, who previously signed a confession at Seattle to a part in the slaying, had contended the attack on Mrs. Williams began while he was asleep in the car's back seat.

Newman outlined these highlights from Ritchey's confession: Mrs. Williams picked up the two men on the outskirts of Denver. They decided to kill her and steal her car, timing the attack when Roedel began singing.

Ritchey was driving, with Roedel next to him and Mrs. Williams seated by the door. Roedel began his song, then struck the woman with a hammer found in the car. The woman was struck repeatedly as she struggled.

The men rolled the body out of the car and down a roadside embankment.

Prizes were won by Mrs. Wendell Swope, Mrs. Erma Metcalfe and Mrs. Pauline Archer, William Archer, Don Archer, and W. Metcalfe. A lunch was served by Mrs. Bettner. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Don Archer, Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Swope, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Archer, Mr. and Mrs. W. Metcalfe and Mr. and Mrs. William Archer.

For this reason, he said, it will be necessary to "visit that country with bombs, and yet more bombs" before Japan's final subjugation.

The dedication ceremony brought to a climax three years of effort by various civic groups and organizations. Efforts to secure a new annex were started in 1939 by the local chamber of commerce, and the next year the chamber received the active support of the board of education. Erection of the building was assured in February of 1941 when a referendum on issuance of $125,000 worth of building bonds by the school district was carried by a seven to one majority.

The new building is of modern design, and the auditorium-gymnasium proper has a 94 by 60 foot recreation space for games. The bleachers will seat nearly 700 spectators, and under the stage are stored an additional 700 chairs for use when needed.

Floor space in the basement totals 6,000 feet. This will be used for industrial arts and farm shop departments as well as for adult defense courses during the winter.

Nation on Record Breaking Shopping Spree for Christmas

Stores in War Production Areas Are Doing Best

New York, Nov. 21—Americans now are on a Christmas shopping spree in this last great nation which still can call itself a land of plenty.

Department stores and the retail trade this week continued a record holiday business which started in October.

Stores in war production areas are doing best. Their increase for the last three months of 1942 may be 25 to 50 per cent above the same period a year ago.

Here are some explanations for the buying spurge:
The rush began in October to get gifts for the men in the armed services. Packages for them had to be shipped long before the holidays.

Capitalize on Opportunity
Shoppers know that never again while the war lasts will the stores have the present tremendous supplies which must dwindle as the nation's production turns steadily to ever greater war output.

Many persons working in war plants for the first time in their lives have real spending money.

Demand is particularly strong for handbags, gloves, lingerie, jewelry, watches, cosmetics, apparel.

The census bureau points out that in October jewelry store sales were 82 per cent over a year ago, apparel and department stores, 32 per cent, and drug stores, 31.

Total retail increases from 34 states making reports, according to the bureau, were 12 per cent.

Higher Prices

The percentage increase for department store sales this year showed for every month—except May and August—an increase over the corresponding month of 1941.

Dun and Bradstreet, Inc., estimated current national retail sales this week at 14 to 17 per cent above the same week a year ago in dollar volume.

Some of that increase might be due to higher prices, but the buying was at record levels.

The Wall Street Journal reported that, in spite of higher taxes, for the fiscal year ending Jan. 31 department stores' income probably would be as good, if not better, than last year.

Stores in war production centers reportedly are selling goods as fast as they can be obtained, which is often less of a problem than finding salesmen and saleswomen.

Nine Billion Loan Will Be Sought by Treas. in December

Washington, Nov. 21—(AP)—With the cost of war now nearing the $6,000,000,000-a-month mark and almost equalling the amount spent for all consumer goods and services in the entire nation, Uncle Sam Friday started oiling the world's biggest dual-action financing machine.

First, the treasury set up plans to borrow during December approximately $9,000,000,000 — the most money ever raised that way at one time in the world's history.

Second, it delved deeper into a re-study of a new tax program—expected to include some form of compulsory savings—which probably will be submitted to the new congress early next year.

Building the borrowing program on a wider base than ever before, the treasury will coordinate the work of the victory fund committees and the war savings staff workers, thus utilizing the efforts of nearly 350,000 volunteers to float the historic loan.

Secretary Morgenthau said the money would be raised by stepping up sales of war bonds and tax savings notes, and by offering three new types of treasury securities "designated for every class and type of investor."

In addition to the new securities, Morgenthau said the treasury hoped to take its borrowings deeper into the pockets of the average person by adding at least 7,000,000 more income-earners to the ranks of those already buying war bonds on the payroll savings plan.

Customers Won't Take This Grocer Seriously

Chicago, Nov. 21—(AP)—"Guess people think I'm kiddin'" says Mr. A. Gallo, proprietor of the Blackstone food store.

For weeks Gallo had to tell housewives: "Sorry, I have no coffee."

Then, he got some. But sales lagged. So he painted a big sign on the window: "Coffee—we have it."

He hasn't sold a bean since.

flung out about 30 miles in a semi-circle about each port. An allied spokesman predicted that the struggle would grow in ferocity hourly and axis reports indicated the enemy already was throwing all the air and submarine resources at his command into the effort to block the closing circle of allied steel and choke off its supplies.

Reuters said British forces had captured their first axis prisoners within Tunisia and that in one clash British parachute troops also had destroyed six enemy armored cars.

The situation apparently was revolving about a German decision to pin axis resistance to a strong defense of Tunis and Bizerte but there still was no official indication that the axis forces in Libya had been effectively isolated from those in Tunisia by strong British or American forces reaching the Mediterranean south of those places.

Seek to Check Rommel

An allied force from the Chad area, deep in central Africa, however, again was reported by the Brazzaville radio to be thrusting north in an effort to cut off Marshal Rommel's line of retreat between El Agheila and Tripoli.

A German broadcast reported initial major encounters between the axis and the allies in Tunisia—first disclosed yesterday in allied dispatches. The Berlin radio, however, claimed that 12 allied tanks and 18 armored cars had been destroyed and a railroad station seized east of Tabarka, near the Algerian border.

Another German report said one Fighting French column had been thrown back to the Tunisian frontier in the south while others, near Beja, 55 miles west of Tunis, and Mejez el Dab, 30 miles west of Tunis, were bombed as they marched to join the main forces.

The Algiers radio said the Germans were trying to set up another foothold on the Gulf of Gabes, in eastern Tunisia, but that the French had repulsed a new landing attempt and captured some Germans in an engagement northwest of the port of Gabes.

German reports, quoting allied sources in Spanish Morocco, said the allies were in the area of Hammamet, on the coast between Gabes and Tunis, and that a Fighting French-American column moving in from the south had reached Foriana, on the railway line to Sousse, and Gafsa, on the railroad to Sfax.

One allied vanguard was placed only 25 miles southeast of Tunis, five miles closer than other forces closing around both enemy strongholds.

The struggle for air supremacy apparently was unfolding as one of the keys to Hitler's whole fading grasp on North Africa.

The German-controlled Paris radio said allied air forces again blasted airfields last night inside the axis-held areas. It also was the source for a report of more German and Italian troops arriving in Tunisia.

is to race his shattered and harassed forces westward until he can make a junction with axis colleagues now bent on stemming the allied drive against Tunis and Bizerte. Present indications are that Hitler has no intention of abandoning without another stand.

Air power is becoming increasingly important as the battle swells to a climax with the allies pressing the axis from west to east.

Hitler's hopes must depend largely on the luftwaffe and he is said to be rushing aerial reinforcements into the battle.

The allies, already superior in the air, are gaining strength as they advance into enemy territory. Already the allied drive through Libya has resulted in the capture of some 120 landing fields and this naturally facilitates operations of the combined British and American forces which unceasingly plaster axis columns, bases and lines of communication.

At this crucial juncture, Lieut. Gen. Frank M. Andrews, famous air exponent, has arrived to take command of United States Army forces in the Middle East. He undoubtedly has stepped into the midst of a situation to his liking for he knows his air. It is my observation that he is swinging into action fast.

I had an interesting chat with the general a couple of nights ago and while one isn't privileged to quote him I came away with the impression that American experts are looking forward to the fascinating possibilities of bombing Italy and German territory from North African airports as soon as the present drive is over.

one night, he said, was not unusual.

No Prisoners Taken

The sight of a prisoner on the island is an oddity, Peterkin stated. "For almost no prisoners are taken by either side."

"When the Japs rush, they yell in English, 'Blood for the emperor; come out, Marines, you're licked.' There seems to be a lot of American-educated Japanese among the snipers. They're always shouting in English from the trees."

But the Marines don't take the Japs' word for it that the Leathernecks are licked, Peterkin said.

Instead, the Devil Dogs have an easy job cleaning up the Japs, and now there is a saying on Guadalcanal that "The Japs fight for their lives, but the Marines fight for souvenirs."

Among the souvenirs taken from Jap bodies were a number of revolvers "made in Connecticut."

Attack Cargo Ships

In the absence of more important nearby targets, Army bombers from the Guadalcanal airport attacked cargo vessels in the Buna area at the southeastern end of Bougainville island, Nov. 18, the Navy announced, and shot down 14 enemy planes during the attack. No American losses were reported.

Describing the slaying or routing of 1,500 Japanese on the island as "very significant," Knox told a press conference that the Americans now outnumber the enemy on Guadalcanal.

He declared that the Japanese "can bring in more reinforcements and fight their way but so far they have been unable to do it."

JAPANESE TRAPPED

Somewhere in New Guinea, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Japanese forces trapped in a narrow coastal strip in the Buna-Gona district of New Guinea were reported fighting back desperately today as American and Australian ground troops moved in relentlessly to drive them into the sea or force their capitulation.

One United States force was within a mile of Buna and engaged in heavy fighting and another was attempting to wrest a landing field on the outskirts of the village from the defending Japanese. This second unit reported that it had met heavy machine gun fire within 500 yards of the field.

Japanese planes entered the fighting near Buna yesterday and seven Zeros strafed allied troops already under attack from light artillery and mortars.

One American force approaching Buna from the south along the coast was trying to overcome opposition at Cape Endiadeira, a few miles from the village. Heavy fighting was in progress at Soputa, about eight miles inland from the coast on the Kokoda-Buna trail.

The main body of the Japanese forces, however, has been driven into a triangular area bounded by a six-mile coastal strip between Buna and Gona and irregular lines running inland from these hamlets to Soputa.

The bitter struggle of the Japanese in this area indicated to observers that they had no intention of surrendering and a battle of extermination seemed to be in progress.

SAYS TASK IS HARD

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Walter Nash, New Zealand minister to the United States and member of the Pacific War Council, believes the American naval victory in the Solomons area was "as good as Midway," but that it was not a decisive blow to Japanese sea power.

"It is a major but not a decisive victory," Nash said last night in an address sponsored by the Mid-Day Luncheon Club. "The enemy has suffered a serious blow but by no stretch of the imagination can it be called a mortal one. It is certain that he will come back."

"It is equally certain, on the other hand, that he cannot indefinitely take such punishment and at the same time hope to maintain successful defensive, let alone vigorous offensive action in any part of the South Pacific."

"What is of greatest significance is that the Japanese have maneuvered into exposing a considerable portion of their naval strength to combined assault by allied sea, air and land forces. The job is not merely one of driving the Japanese from this or that particular island territory, but rather of seeking out and destroying the Japanese fleet."

"It is a grave mistake to think that conquering Japan will be an easy task. They are amazingly well organized, and thoroughly behind their military leaders."

munists and Jews."

Predicts Nazi Victory

In his 15-minute speech Laval assured his people again that Germany would not lose the war, declared he had tried to maintain peace with the United States and blamed President Roosevelt for blaming French and Americans to gunpoint after centuries of friendship.

"An entente with Germany is the only guarantee for peace in Europe," he said, and again predicted a Nazi victory after charging that "nothing justifies American hostility toward us."

Laval scoffed at allied promises to return the seized portions of the French empire in the future, recalling how the British took French Canada and parts of the West Indies long ago.

"On the other side of the world," Laval continued, "Japan, an old nation by its history and a young one by its dynamism, has just taken from Britain and the United States immense territories, treasures, and raw materials."

Charges Allies Seize Empire
"The Anglo-Saxons are seizing the (French) empire and seeking compensations for the losses they know are irreparable."

Japan's early seizure of French Indo-China opened the way for her quick conquest of the Philippines, and Dutch and British territories in the western Pacific.

"Frenchmen: Understand that you must not allow yourselves to be deceived and abused by foreign propaganda. The London and Boston radios have a single aim. Don't let your spirit be misled to serve interests that are not yours."

Asserts "France Is Not Lost"
"I was always certain Germany would be the victor, but always was ready to remain in good terms with America."

"I like liberty, but I will never accept for my country a parliamentary government as we had before."

"France is not lost. The day will come when the banner of France will fly alone over Algiers."

"I have known in my public life difficult moments when the fate of France was in peril."

Upholds Collaboration
"It is always in these hours that I arrive in power."

Laval then told how he had worked for agreements with Germany and Italy for years before the war, and remarked of his present axis collaboration policy:

"It is to try to save the territory of our empire that we make this policy. An entente with Germany is the only guarantee for peace in Europe."

Wanted Peace With U. S.
"I have always wanted peace. I have wanted it with America."

He called the French leaders who declared war on Germany in 1939 "madmen" and said of that war:

"It was useless and all was lost in advance."

Laval accused the United States of "tearing away from us piece by piece" the French empire and added:

"Without this empire France can not live."

He forecast a Communistic Europe of Germany is defeated, and, although he predicted a German victory, he said he "had decided to make the same policy if she (Germany) were beaten."

Old-Fashioned Tea Attracts Ninety Guests

Time swung backward to days they never knew or scarcely member for women attending old-fashioned treasure exhibit tea at the First Methodist church Thursday afternoon. About guests turned out for the event sponsored by Circle Three of Women's Society of Christ Service, headed by Mrs. Robert Brewster.

O. State Can Claim Crown With Victory

Wisconsin Must Down Gophers to Remain in Race

Columbus, O., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Paul Brown of Ohio State pits his youthful coaching skill against Michigan's veteran Fritz Crisler as their powerful football teams battle before 80,000 rabid fans today.

A win would give Ohio an undisputed championship in Brown's second year in the Big Ten.

At stake for Crisler is his record of not having lost to an Ohio team since he took over the Michigan coaching reins in 1938. But he has had plenty of respect for Brown's skill since an underdog Ohio team deadlocked Michigan 20-0 in 1941. Brown's first year out of high school ranks.

Michigan also can grab a share of the conference title by trimming Ohio, which has lost only to Wisconsin this year. Michigan bowed to the Iowa Seahawks and Minnesota.

While Brown has insisted his squad has gotten along "on a shoestring" this season, Crisler said as he brought his team to town, "Ohio hasn't got anything to worry about."

Michigan got some bad news with the information that Ohio's fastest halfback, pint-sized Tommy James, would be able to see some action despite a shoulder separation suffered in the Illinois game last week.

Brown said, however, "I'm not planning to use him unless something unforeseen comes up when I can use him in a spot run." James' spot running accounted for two touchdowns against Illinois.

WISCONSIN VS. GOPHERS

Madison, Wis., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Wisconsin and Minnesota closed their 1942 football season today in the 52nd renewal of one of the country's oldest grid rivalries.

A record crowd of 46,000 was in prospect for the game, one of the Midwest's top contests.

The Badgers, with their best team in years, were after their first victory since 1932 over the Gophers, 1941 Big Ten champions. A win for Wisconsin, and a victory by Michigan over Ohio State, would assure the Badgers of at least a tie for the conference title.

Wisconsin was without the services of its sophomore quarterback star, Jack Wink, but Badger followers rested their hopes on Pat Harder, Elroy Hirsch and Mark Hoskins, the great 3-H backfield trio.

Wisconsin has suffered one defeat and one tie and scored five victories, whereas Minnesota's record showed three defeats and five wins. Two of their setbacks were by conference teams, Indiana and Illinois.

SAILORS VS. ILLINI

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 21.—(AP)—The Great Lakes Bluejackets, hitting their stride with four straight shutout victories after a disappointing start this season, met Illinois today. A crowd of 15,000 was expected.

The Illini closed their Western Conference campaign with three wins and two defeats.

The Sailors line, which has held opponents to a combined average of 82 yards by rushing per game, outwitted the Illinois forward nearly 20 pounds to the man.

IRISH VS. WILDCATS

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Notre Dame, making its final home appearance of the season, engaged Northwestern for the 22nd time today, with the Big Ten's most consistent loser seeking its second win of the season.

During the series the Irish have won 16 games to Northwestern's three. Two ended in ties.

Notre Dame, with a record of five wins, two defeats and a tie, placed its hopes for victory on Angelo Bertelli's passing. Northwestern's threat was Otto Graham, the leading Western Conference passer on a team that lost all six of its Big Ten games—the first time since 1923 the Wildcats were shut out in conference competition.

INDIANA VS. PURDUE

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Indiana, winner of five of eight games this year, clashed with Purdue for the 45th time today and the 17th encounter between the two schools for the old oaken bucket.

Indiana was after its third consecutive victory over the Boilermakers, which would give the Hoosiers, led by Billy Hillenbrand, possession of the old oaken bucket, symbol of the teams' rivalry since 1925, for the third year.

The Boilermakers have won only one game in eight starts.

SEAHAWKS VS. HUSKERS

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 21.—(AP)—The Iowa Seahawks, playing their only home game of the season, faced the Nebraska Cornhuskers today in their best physical condition of the campaign.

The Huskers, in the midst of one of their worst seasons, were

Harry Grayson Reviews Past Racing Campaign in New York

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Service Sports Editor

New York, Nov. 21.—Racegoers firmly believe that a horse which draws the outside post position has much less chance than the one which draws the rail.

To dispel a good theory, it does not make any difference whether the runner starts from the inside or outside.

During the 1942 season on New York tracks, 200 thoroughbreds won from the No. 1 position and 198 from the outside.

It also is a theory that putting blinkers on a steed invariably improves the animal's form. Look what they did for Seabiscuit, for example.

But Albert Burien, who gives us the figures on the inside and outside post positions, reports that out of 470 horses permitted to add blinkers to their equipment on New York strips the past campaign, 46 won the first time out.

Of 184 which changed from blinkers to no blinkers, only 11 prevailed.

Al Burien is clerk of the scales. He has been checking the weights of jockeys following races and keeping records for 30 years.

Record Season

There were 198 days of racing in New York, the longest season since 1907. There were 1428 races.

There were 14,473 overnight entries. A lot of trainers changed their minds, however, and 2358 were withdrawn. That left 12,115 starters, more than eight to a heat, which is as good an average as anywhere in the country.

Twenty odd burners were left at the post. Thirteen of these could not get out of the stall gates because the doors of the machine did not open.

Money wagered on these horses was refunded. No refunds were made in the cases of the seven others because the starting machine functioned and the fault was with the horses. And the suckers who bet on them.

37 Dead Heats

There were more than twice as many dead heats this season than last—37, nine each for first and second, 11 for third and eight for fourth.

There were 26 disqualifications as compared to 11 in 1941. Out of 59 objections, 33 were overruled.

Of 140 jockeys, 24 were suspended, nine fined.

Halter men claimed 234 horses, paid about $400,000 for them.

Seven horses, most of them steeplechasers, were destroyed because of injuries incurred in races.

Steeplechasing on race courses wouldn't appear to be that dangerous, but if we are to take seriously "the improvement of the breed," horses must jump.

Steeplechasing is racing's only event holding spectacular interest all the way along the route.

Most flat races could just as well start at the quarter pole.

The bulk of the trade is interested only in the result.

Evanston.—Bob Motl, Northwestern end, caught two touchdowns against Wisconsin to emerge as the outstanding pass receiver in the Big Ten. He caught 18 passes for 243 yards in eight games.

Sunnybrook Commands a 4-Game Edge

Despite Double Loss to Seventh-Place Hub Tavern

Sunnybrook bowed twice to seventh-place Hub Tavern, last night, but still commanded a four game edge over runnerup Dixon Paint, 2-1 victor over Hunter Co.

Lepper Motor Service downed Sweeney & Oester, 2-1, to remain one game back of the paint crew in third.

Cellar-dwelling Freeman Shoes won two from sixth-place Reynolds Wire.

Stagger Into Camp After Being Reported Missing in Action

By Sergeant James W. Hurlbut
Marine Corps Combat Correspondent
Distributed by The Associated Press
Guadalcanal, Oct. 29—(Delayed)—After five harrowing nights and four equally terrifying days spent in a jungle infested with enemy troops, five marines and a navy pharmacist's mate staggered through our front lines to safety this morning.

Half starved, exhausted, dirty, cut by thorns and brambles, the six were given a royal greeting by astonished comrades.

"Where'd you guys come from? We thought you were dead. How'd you get back in?"

"Well, we just prayed and kept moving. And, believe me, we did a lot of praying."

The speaker was young Private First Class Richard E. Hollinger, USMC of York, Pa. Pharmacist's Mate Second Class Homer H. Berry, USN, Roanoke Rapids, N. C.; Private Cecil A. Bazzell, USMC, Thomaston, Ga.; Private George E. Safley, USMC, Mineral, Va.; Private Edward C. Rothman, USMC, Hartford, Conn.; and Private Mathew C. Constantino, USMC, Rochester, N. Y.

Cut Off From Lines

The six were members of a 46-man platoon on outpost duty in no-man's-land beyond our positions the night of October 24th, when the Japanese forces attacked to the west of our positions in an attempt to recapture our air field. When the Japs moved up into position, they swarmed around the platoon, cutting it off from our lines.

Two men were killed. Thirty-one men—including ten wounded—got back to our main body during the night. The six who came in today were among the 13 previously listed as "missing in action." But let Private Hollinger tell the story:

"When the Japs came in around us it was very dark, there was a lot of shooting going on, and we couldn't tell what the score was. So we decided to camouflage ourselves and lay down for the night.

"There were an awful lot of Japs. At least a battalion moved right by us and almost tripped over us a couple of times.

Spotted by Patrol

"We got through the night all right, and when it got light we saw that the Japs had thinned out, so we decided to move. We hadn't gotten very far when a four-man patrol spotted us. We shot at least two of them.

"Later, while we were crossing through some heavy grass, one of our planes flew right over our heads. We tried to signal the pilot with a white mosquito net, but he didn't see us.

"Then our artillery opened up. Shells fell all around us. Luckily, none of us got hit.

"After the shelling stopped, we started moving again. We went through five empty Japanese bivouacs. These had apparently been abandoned in a hurry, because there were helmets and rifles and food and stuff like that lying around.

"We bedded down for the second night with the Japanese all around us. We could hear them talking and moving around.

Completely Lost

"Next morning we started along a jungle trail, when he heard a racket up ahead. We hid in the bushes to see what was coming. A minute later five Japanese, camouflaged with leaves sewn to their uniforms, came down the trail with a heavy machine gun. When they had passed, eight Japs came up the same direction we had been going. They must have been trailing us.

"We didn't have a compass and we were completely lost but we kept on the move all day. We had to go so cautiously that we covered only about 200 yards before nightfall.

"Things were pretty quiet after the third night. We made about two miles through the jungle on the third day and didn't see any Japanese.

"The fourth day we made good time, wading straight down a river and sleeping on the river beach that night.

"This morning we started wading again. Along about 10 o'clock we heard some people moving in front of us and thought at first it was more Japanese. We sure were glad when we saw it was an army patrol. They treated us to some army iron rations and led us back in."

Vern Haugland Back on His Favorite Job

San Francisco, Nov. 21—(AP)—Vern Haugland, The Associated Press war correspondent, who survived 43 days of wandering and suffering in New Guinea jungles, is back on the job again.

His diary of those 43 days after he bailed out of a lost plane has been called "an epic of journalism."

After several weeks in hospitals 34-year-old Haugland, now is able to resume the war coverage he so eagerly sought.

Need for Doctors in War Production Is Emphasized Now

However, Industrial Medicine Not As Easy as
It Sounds

New York—(AP)—Putting a doctor into a war plant and telling him to take care of the workers is not so simple as it sounds.
Not if the physician is to do a good, intelligent job.
But the need for doctors in war plants is continually being emphasized now.
The army of workers, millions of them going into new and unfamiliar jobs, is growing. At the same time more thousands of physicians are going into the armed services, putting a greater burden on those doctors who remain at home in industry or general practice.

Separate Profession
"I assure you this cannot be done. The practice of industrial medicine is a separate profession and one which requires special training if industry is to receive the benefits which it has the right to expect."
Dr. Rutherford T. Johnstone said almost two years ago in the journal of the American Medical Association that if a doctor is to obtain an adequate conception of the dissimilarity between general medicine and industrial medicine, he should answer the following questions:
"What are the signs and symptoms attributable to the illness allegedly arising from the occupation of a furrier, fumigator, sand blaster, welder, maker of felt hats, abrasive soap maker, cotton sorter or degreaser (textile); from employment with refrigeration, vulcanizing or photography, or from working with rayon, benzene, cement dust, carbon disulfide, carbon tetrachloride, aniline dyes, pottery, chromium or methyl chlo-ride or with solutions used in electroplating, glass etching or dry cleaning?"

Used In Placement
Quoting an N. A. M. survey which showed that those companies with established health programs had reductions of 45 per cent in accidents, 63 per cent in occupational diseases, 30 per cent in absenteeism and 27 per cent in labor turnover, Dr. Heiser said:
"Sometimes companies instituting an integrated health program at first receive complaints about the physical examinations. Actually rejections of prospective employees for reasons of health come to only 4.4 per cent of applications. Physical examinations in industrial health programs are really for placement purposes."
But keeping workers and their families well is more than just a job for a physician in a certain industry. He may be able to cut down accidents in a plant and illness contracted on the job.

In a single night, a leaf of the giant Victoria waterlily may increase in size as much as five square feet.

Fifteen Years of Service

Rev. and Mrs. F. W. Henke were completely surprised Sunday evening at a devotional meeting held in the St. John's Lutheran church in Ashton. The congregations of the Franklin Grove and Ashton churches planned the surprise in honor of Rev. and Mrs. Henke's 15 years of services of the two churches and also their 20th anniversary in the ministry. The program began with the prelude by the church organist, Miss Anna Marie Schafer. Rev. P. F. Doermann, president of the Illinois district, conducted the opening service as liturgist. A combined ladies' choir, made up of singers from Franklin Grove and Ashton sang two numbers "Rejoice in the Lord" and "To Thee Eternal God."

Rev. A. T. Buckler of Elizabeth, and a former schoolmate of Rev. Henke, brought the sermon of the evening. Greetings to Rev. and Mrs. Henke were brought by the neighboring pastors, Rev. G. H. Doermann of Sterling; Rev. C. L. Wagner of Dixon; Rev. August Elobaum of Paynes Point, and Rev. C. Kolkwarf of Ohio. Rev. M. P. F. Doermann brought greetings from the entire district.

Clarence Schafer, a member of the church board, presented the honored couple with a purse of money from the two congregations. After the closing service Rev. and Mrs. Henke retired to the entrance of the church where they greeted the members of their congregation personally, and received their congratulations. Mrs. Henke was presented with a shoulder corsage and Rev. Henke was given a boutonniere.

Light refreshments were served to the honored guests and the visiting pastors and their wives at the parsonage following the service.

Basketball

Ashton's strong offense proved to be too much for the local team in the game last Tuesday night. With considerable advantage in height, particularly in the center position, Ashton was able to score freely in rebounds.

The local fans had their chance to celebrate when the lightweight team left the floor with a 19 to 10 victory. Bob Torti led the scoring in this game and tied with Shaulis in points during the second game.

The next game comes on Nov. 27, when Franklin Grove plays Amboy on the home floor.

Proofs for senior pictures were received this week from the photographer and members of the class have been busy trying to decide whether they have fulfilled expectations.

Charles W. Barnhart, son of Abraham and Ellen Robinson-Barnhart, was born in Woodford county, Ill., on December 16, 1865 and died November 16, 1942. He was 76 years and 11 months of age.

He was one of a family of 13 children, six of whom were boys and seven were girls. He early learned to work and to share and had formed a philosophy of pay as you go.

In his early youth he united with the Church of the Brethren to which principles he was a faithful advocate, and when he was united in marriage to Miss Susie Patten in January 1886, they both became faithful members of the church. To this union was born one son, Clarence Arthur, Mr. and Mrs. Barnhart first came to Rochelle and after 8 years moved to Ashton on a farm and later to Franklin Grove where they had lived about 15 years. Mrs. Barnhart passed away four years ago. Since that time he lived with his son and wife in the home.

He leaves to mourn his passing one son Clarence Barnhart, three brothers, James Barnhart of Modesta, Calif.; Ora Barnhart of Elgin, Ill.; and Thomas Barnhart of Worthington, O. Six sisters, Mrs. Anna Hahn, Mrs. Madeline, Mo.; Mrs. Frank, Richie, Mrs. Howard Armstrong and Mrs. Mary Claude of Filer, Idaho; Mrs. Arthur Armstrong of Eureka, Ill.; and Mrs. John Hamilton of Springfield, Ill.

There are four grandchildren and 7 great grandchildren. These with many other relatives and friends pause in expression of sympathy.

Nobly they cause is run. Splendor surrounds it. Bravely they fight is won. Victory has crowned it. In thy warfare of Heaven, Grown old and hoary, Thou art like the summer sun, Shrouded in glory.

22 Federal Employees Fired for Subversive Activities Since August

Washington, Nov. 21—(AP)—Attorney General Biddle reported to congress Friday that since August 22 six federal employees had been discharged and one had been disciplined for membership in subversive organizations.

This brings to 56 the total of federal employees thus dealt with since that type of investigation was begun at the behest of the house committee on un-American activities.

Biddle's report, covering a three-month period, was made under a provision in the Federal Bureau of Investigation budget for the 1943 fiscal year, setting aside $200,000 to investigate employees of every branch of the government "who are members of subversive organizations or advocate the overthrow of the federal government by force."

A composite report showed that a total of 4,612 cases was taken under consideration by the FBI and that investigations had been completed and reports sent to the employing agencies in 2,310 cases.

Greeting Cards Are Reflection of Times, Useful to Historians

Fashions, Trends, Expressions Shown in Texts

The future historian would do well to ponder the greeting card as a source of material for his theses on the modes and moods of men.

There seems to be an inexhaustible store of information in these familiar and very readable texts—reflecting not only our tastes in fashion, but also revealing the trends of events, and even the sports and expressions of speech in popular favor.

As far back as 100 years ago, a treasury of facts was prepared for us on one greeting card about the customs of that early Victorian period; that was the first known Christmas card, published in England in 1842. We know from the panels of this richly decorated greeting that the ladies and lads of that period swung to the steps of the Roger de Coverly, an old English country dance named after the popular fictional character. We find also from the same card that ice skating was a favorite sport; that carolers cheered the holiday evenings; that then as now, poverty and with it, warm-hearted charity, existed in the midst of the Christmas festivities.

Story of Man Recorded

Thus, through the years since that time, the story of man has been recorded for us in a very enjoyable and unbiased form.

A mere glance at the cards published during the past few years would inform our historian friend that here, in the early middle of the 20th century, was a nation on the road to war, and that here existed a people willing and ready for the self-sacrifice necessary to hold their precious freedom and to share it with the rest of the world.

The influence of the war and the attitudes of the people will be clearly mirrored in this year's Christmas cards too.

In response to the demands of a public newly awakened to the meaning of patriotism, the greeting card industry has obliged with the publication of many new lines of greetings—cards of a patriotic and military nature, and all forms of special cards to be sent to and from service men; there are amusing cards to carry a touch of good old Yankee wit to our soldiers in strange lands, and there are serious or sentimental greetings to assure our men that they have our constant love and support.

Rationing Blues

A number of the cards reflect the good humor of the people in the face of enforced changes of habit—cards that chant the rationing blues, for example, that good-naturedly mock the tax increases, the various shortages. This one will strike home to many a Sunday-drive fan:

Roads all blocked an' gas is low, Tires worn out an' car won't go, So can't roll around your way today

But Merry Christmas anyway! And others reveal how the American ingenuity comes to the surface at such times. One card pictures a charming young lady pedaling happily around on a bicycle, while another even shows a serene little family going for a visit via a bicycle built for three.

As may be expected, another mood of the people is reflected in Christmas cards this year, in addition to staunch patriotism and a willingness to roll up their sleeves and face the facts.

It is significant that a deep need for religion is noted, a desire for and a determination to keep the true spirit of Christmas. There are many cards blossoming with the traditional holly and poinsettia, others picturing longed-for scenes of peaceful hearthside, and many depicting simply and gracefully the beloved scenes of the Nativity.

All through all the cards this wartime Christmas, whether traditional, patriotic or religious, flows the one great will of the nation—to attain that most noble of all goals—Peace on Earth, Good Will Toward Men!

Stark Works Day, Night in Role of Navy Coordinator

London, Nov. 21—(AP)—The spring day eight months ago when Admiral Harold R. Stark arrived in London to take over his new duties as commander of United States naval forces in Europe he went directly to his headquarters, pitched into the problems of his new command and worked far into the night.

The start was symbolic for this soft spoken, white haired naval officer. He works to keep the admiralty in London and the navy department in Washington closely coordinated. This delicate task comes on top of his duties supervising the intricate organization of his widespread command.

Admiral Stark holds a diplomatic job as well. He is United States representative to General Charles De Gaulle and Fighting France.

No matter how late he works, he is up again by 7 a. m. and is at his headquarters about an hour later. The springy walk and glow of health in the face of the sixty two year old admiral show that he thrives on hours that would send many a younger man to a rest home.

Half-Holiday

"We had a half holiday Tuesday", joked one of his personal secretarial staff. "We got off at six o'clock."

Admiral Stark lives in a small apartment about three minutes walk from the London Square, which Englishmen call "Little America" because of the large number of uniformed Americans to be seen there night and day.

He walks to his office, guarded by United States marines, and plunges into his work—dictating mail and memoranda, seeing members of his staff and reading urgent reports which cannot wait the quieter evening hours.

He frequently follows his old Washington habit of eating a light lunch at his desk.

When the press of work permits the admiral goes for a week-end to a refuge to the country where he indulges a passion for walks. (His only other hobby sailing in small boats, but he given that up for the duration.)

Reputation for Sincerity

He now holds the command under which he served twenty seven years earlier as flag secretary to Admiral William F. S. in the first World War.

The Admiral has gained a reputation in London—as he had home—for great sincerity, absolute frankness. The same attitude he thinks, should prevail in all Anglo-American relations.

"Of course Britain and America will get along together, not because they must but because it is natural," he said. "We have our little tiffs, but the of friends have arguments, their friendship is not hurt when they get things settled."

Then he added as he stood the broad window of his office "But we must also remember that everything must be subordinated to one central idea—to ahead—with winning the war."

Fire Destroys Partially Built Chrysler Building

Chicago, Nov. 21—(AP)—destroyed a partially completed frame building at the huge side plant of the Chrysler Company Friday and Deputy Marshal Michael Cody estimated the damage at $20,000.

Twenty-six pieces of apparatus answered the 3-11 alarm. Cody said the blaze probably started from a salamander which was used to keep cement from freezing.

Fire Captain Gustav Garbo, 58, was taken to Holy Cross hospital suffering from burns, shock and exhaustion.
